Collaboration (outline)	We had an opening session where the participants met for the first time. We introduced the concept, the technical means and explained the task. After this session, the students were free to meet whenever they wanted. All our planning and the result can be seen on this Padlet:.
Duration of Collaboration	Q1 / Q2
How to evaluate students' achievement	We had a final session in which we watched the videos of the participant and made an evaluation of the class.
Comment	- Universities in Germany have no quarter system. So it is very difficult to work together. To put it very clearly: The quarter system is anti-productive for international cooperation with German (and I think we can say European) universities. - It was very difficult to find Nanzan students who were willing to do this collaborative work. The German university had more than twice as many interested students. I was looking for three-year students, but next year I will have to ask second-year students to meet the demand on the German side.
