Collaboration (outline)	Because of the large number of students, the classes were split into two groups, and two sessions were scheduled, each for one hour. After a brief introduction, the students were assigned to breakout rooms (4-5 people in each) for a 25 minute discussion. After gathering together in the larger group, new breakout rooms were arranged for another 25 minute discussion.
Duration of Collaboration	Two sessions, one hour each.
How to evaluate students' achievement	The students were asked to write a brief report, covering both the content of the discussions they participated in, and their brief reaction to the discussions.
Comment	The students' reports indicate that all found the discussions useful. The students were asked to prepare questions prior to the discussion based on the material presented in class. They appreciated the opportunity to talk across cultures, and identified the experience as one highlight of the class.
