Collaboration (outline)	The students of both universities had to learn about the theory of G. Hofstede about the "Dimensions of Culture" through videos and texts. After this, they had to deliver a self-made-video (made with the tool Adobe Spark Video), in which they simulated training for expats to Japan or Germany. They had to explain the intercultural differences between Japan and Germany for those expats.
duration	2021-4 - 2021-6
How to evaluate students' achievement	I made a gallery of the videos made by the students, which is open to watch for every inscribed student and teacher. Furthermore, there was an evaluation of the student' s satisfaction at the end of the course via ZOOM. If desired I can submit the links to the works of the students for COIL webpage as well.
Comment	Because of the strong desire of the students for such courses we are currently thinking about providing this course in autumn (= Q3) again.
